

PREMIER FLANDIN AND HIS CABINET ARE OVERTHROWN

BOUSSION IS FORMING NEW GOVERNMENT

Parliament Refuses Dictatorial Power To Flandin

Paris, May 30.—The towering Premier Etienne Flandin was overthrown heavily tonight in his demand for dictatorial powers to defend the franc, and Fernand Boussion, president of the chamber, attempted immediately to form a new government.

The government's attempt to stem the flood of gold from the Bank of France, launched simultaneously police action against speculators, closing at least one "financial establishment."

Devaluation of the franc, which Flandin predicted would follow his fall, remained an ever present threat. Boussion is committed to support of the franc, but Flandin declared in his farewell speech from the rostrum of the chamber that devaluation was inevitable if his successor failed to get the dictatorial powers which were denied to him.

The Flandin government was overthrown by a vote of 353 to 292. The premier had already tossed aside Louis Germain-Martin, his finance minister, in an effort to appease the opposition. But even a request for a modified time limit to the dictatorial powers demanded proved without avail.

The budget deficit of 6,000,000,000 francs hung over the heads of the new ministers. All leaders admitted it was impossible to balance the budget fully unless confidence were restored.

The white whiskered Boussion, an independent, went to President Albert Lebrun in the chamber of the outgoing cabinet resigned, and undertook the task of forming a new government.

Boussion made his acceptance of the premiership dependent upon the participation or support of the Socialist party from which he resigned his membership after the February, 1934, riots.

His cabinet was expected to contain Foreign Minister Pierre Laval, Joseph Caillaux, honorary president of the radical Socialist party, and Francois Piatri, one of the leaders of the center group in the chamber of deputies.

Flandin himself was unable to present his resignation to the president with the other members of his government, having fainted in an ante-room of the chamber after his supreme effort to save his government.

He had returned to his home and entrusted to Herriot the defense of the cabinet.

Flandin, who was so exhausted by a fractured arm he suffered recently in an automobile accident that he had to return to his sickbed which led to his downfall after less than seven months as premier.

A closing of the Bourse was contemplated to avert a panic since traders ordinarily settle their accounts on the last day of the month.

BOY DROWNED
Alton, Ill., May 30.—(P)—Clarence Steele, 9-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Steele, drowned in the Mississippi river near here this afternoon.

The boy, who had gone swimming with his brother, Fred, 12 and two friends, Edward and Marvin Northcutt, 15 and 11, was carried out from shore when he clambered on a floating log.

When his brother called to him, he slipped off the log and sank. The body was not recovered.

Weather
For Jacksonville and vicinity.—The weather man predicts increasing cloudiness, probably followed by showers at night and on Saturday; not much change in temperature.

The U. S. Cooperative Weather Bureau at the Norbury Sanatorium last night gave temperatures as: high 77; current 75 and low 56. Barometer readings were: A. M. 30.03; P. M. 30.04. Rainfall during past 24 hours 1.60 inches.

Schumann-Heink Forgets Lines, Cries, Goes Home

Hollywood, May 30.—(P)—After 60 years in opera and the concert stage, Mme. Ernestine Schumann Heink made her debut in motion pictures, forgot her lines, cried, and went home.

The beloved Diva appeared yesterday for her scenes in the picture "Here's to Romance." Everything was in readiness, the lights were switched on, cameras whirled, and—

A bewildered expression crossed Mme. Schumann-Heink's face. She struggled vainly to remember the words, a word of encouragement from a prompter only confused her.

Tears came to the eyes of the 73-year-old singer. She was so broken up she went up. Today she sang for "her boys" at the Memorial Day program in the Coliseum.

PLANS FOR GOP MEET NEARING COMPLETION

Will Keep Spotlight On Issues Leaders Declare

Springfield, Ill., May 30.—(P)—Final plans for the republican "grass roots" conference here June 10 and 11 are to be whipped into shape during the next few days.

Coming from a survey of "grass roots" territory in the nine midwestern states, chairman Harrison E. Spangler of the conference committee is to arrive in Springfield tomorrow.

Meeting at the same time will be the five Illinois republicans who signed the call for the political convention at the scene of Abraham Lincoln's shrines.

Still unsettled are the final program details, including the designation of the republican men and women who are to make speeches as several thousand farm belt voters make plans for the 1936 presidential campaign.

Determination to shun candidates and keep the spotlight on issues rather than personalities was expressed again today by Justus L. Johnson of Aurora, state chairman.

Such potential candidates as congressman Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York, who addressed a party rally at Bloomington last night, will have no part in the Springfield convention, Johnson said.

In the capacity of "observers," other states are invited to send representatives to the assembly of republicans from Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Wisconsin.

The party leaders from the nine states, who last were together a month ago at Excelsior Springs, Mo., will not meet until just before the Springfield meeting.

To determine sentiment, Spangler has toured the midwest to talk with the leaders. Jacob D. Allen of Chicago, general secretary, has made tentative arrangements, pending the arrival of the Iowa national committee.

Allen today summoned the five "host state" signers of the convention call to meet here tomorrow. In addition to Johnson, they are Frank L. Smith of Dwight, Noble B. Judah of Chicago, Edward A. Hayes of Decatur and Mrs. Mary Sylvius of Rock Island.

Oetette Born On Ohio Farm Back In 1859, Claim

Old Newspaper Prints Story That Woman Had Twelve Children In 6 Years

Toronto, May 30.—(P)—Back in 1859 Dionne quintuplets would have been three babies short of the top in multiple births. That was the year Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Bradley, on their Ohio farm, claimed parents to an octette, three boys and five girls, all in one day.

A local historian produced a copy of an old newspaper dated August 4 of that year. The story telling of the "octettelets" was credited as correspondence of the New York Tribune.

While no record was available as to whether the eight babies lived for an appreciable length of time, the report said:

FLOODS SWEEP 12 PERSONS TO THEIR DEATHS

Colorado Springs Under Eight Feet Of Water

Colorado Springs, May 30.—(P)—Torrential spring rains sent devastating floods rolling down creeks at the eastern edge of the Rocky Mountains late today, sweeping twelve or more persons to their deaths and paralyzing transportation and communication.

Rushing down Fountain and Monument creeks, the flood waters covered parts of the southern residential section of this city to a depth of eight feet.

Most of the deaths were in this vicinity. The crest on Fountain creek moved on to Pueblo scene of a disastrous flood fifteen years ago, but families were moved out of the lowlands there and the crisis was believed past tonight. The Fountain empties into the Arkansas river, which flooded in 1920 with a loss of many lives at Pueblo.

Cherry creek, which bisects Denver, was flooded by the rain. Its stage above the city was described tonight as greater than that of two years ago, when it wrecked several bridges and caused considerable property damage in Denver.

Elbert, a small village 26 miles east of here, was struck with stunning effect by a water wall that moved down Kiowa creek. Dot Welmore, a plucky telephone operator who stuck by her post as most of the town's 300 residents fled to the hills, said she saw eight business buildings and scores of residences crumble before the torrent.

The tentative death list included: Mrs. Lydia Kennedy and Mrs. Ella V. Clark, swept from their car by the Monument creek flood.

Two unidentified men and a woman seen clinging to a car in the same area and overwhelmed by the water. Two men swept from the roof of a house where they had taken refuge.

One man seen riding a timber down the stream.

Two persons in a coupe bearing a Pueblo license caught by the Monument creek flood.

Fred Whitford, swept from his house by the same stream.

An unidentified man seen to fall into the flood from a tree.

C. Cimino, torn from his horse as he attempted to rescue a couple stranded in the swollen stream in their motor car.

Captain Peter Cramer of the Colorado Springs fire department, who once believed to have drowned while engaged in rescue work, made his way to safety.

Power, gas and water facilities were restored partially to Colorado Springs as the crest of the flood passed tonight. Highway and rail traffic to the south still was blocked by wrecked bridges and inundated roads. Bridges, large and small crumbled before the swollen streams.

Firemen, police, CCC and relief forces joined in relief work and city officials reported the city would be able to take care of its homeless without outside help.

Heaviest property damage here was along the creeks which combine a short distance from the city and flow through it just west of the business section. Many houses were wrecked, others carried away by the flood, some heavily damaged by water and silt.

Lewis Says Vets Will Get Bonus

Chicago, May 30.—(P)—Senator James Hamilton Lewis told an audience of 400 disabled war veterans tonight that the bonus would be paid to war veterans in some modified form, probably in installments, in the very near future through a bill which he said would have the approval of President Roosevelt and the American Legion.

"Your pay is sure," Lewis told the ex-soldiers, who were guests of the Cook county council of the American Legion. "If you feel that the president has fallen in error in considering the veterans he has been badly advised by those he trusted."

"That error is to be corrected and there is under consideration now a form of adaptation which will fulfill the contract between you and the government in regard to compensation."

"No effort will be made to veto this new arrangement. It is one that the administration will understand."

NEW AIR SCHEDULE

Chicago, May 30.—(P)—United Airlines announced today overnight service linking New York, Chicago and other eastern cities with eight additional Pacific coast cities would be inaugurated tomorrow.

Roosevelt Feels For Public Pulse Before Deciding What To Do About Recovery Act

Soldiers March Past Vet's Home; Aged Man Dies

Downingtown, Pa., May 30.—(P)—Memorial Day parades today marched past the home of Samuel T. Banghart, 90-year-old sole survivor of the local Grand Army Post, and within a few hours he was dead.

Banghart, ill several months, was too weak to be taken to a window to watch the parade. His disappointment was believed to have hastened his death.

MEMORIAL DAY IS CELEBRATED THRUOUT NATION

Thousands See Pa- rades; Pay Visit To Cemeteries

By The Associated Press.
The pledge of the nation to forever keep hallowed the memory of those who fell in its wars was repeated throughout the land yesterday (Thursday).

In metropolises and hamlets, impressive parades moved through the streets as the ranks of blue and gray and khaki formed anew on the 68th Memorial Day.

It was a martial display with a wistful touch. The ranks of the silver-haired veterans of the Civil War were pitifully scanty. Many a town had none left to do honor this year.

But straight and strong, the troops of the Spanish-American and World Wars, regular army soldiers and younger members of patriotic organizations filled in the gaps.

Thousands turned out to see the parades, visit the cemeteries, pay their homage at churches, or assemble at battlefields.

Wreaths were stacked at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Washington. Flowers were dropped on the graves of the 43,000 military men in Arlington National cemetery. President Roosevelt cabled King Leopold his appreciation of the tribute paid by Belgians to American heroes buried on their soil.

Rain forced cancellation of the parade in the national capital, but 72,000 entered similar demonstrations in New York's five boroughs. Some 15,000, undeterred by showers, proceeded down Chicago's Michigan boulevard past gaily decked reviewing stands.

More than 2,000 persons attended memorial services at Beach Haven, N. J., for the 76 men who perished in 1933, when the navy's dirigible Akron and the blimp J-3 plunged into the sea.

Disabled veterans in government hospitals in hearkened back to the stirring days of conflict as 21-gun salutes were fired at army posts.

At the Antietam battle field, Gov. Harry W. Nice of Maryland pleaded for a perpetuation of those "noble principles" which inspired the Civil War soldiers. At Gettysburg, Gov. George H. Earle of Pennsylvania called for an end of "economic despotism, as completely as Abraham Lincoln ended the bondage of human beings."

At the Kenesaw Mountain battle ground, where 12,000 Union soldiers are buried, survivors of the blue and Confederate forces held ceremonies for their departed comrades.

Indians and whites joined in the dedication of a rostrum at Custer National cemetery in Montana. There lie the bodies of the U. S. troops massacred with General George Custer in the battle of Little Big Horn.

Wreaths were dropped into the Mississippi river at East St. Louis, Ill., in memory of soldiers and sailors who died at sea.

While the A. E. F. commander, General John J. Pershing participated in services in France for the 28,500 Americans interred there, the graves of his parents, John F. and Elizabeth Pershing, and their son, Capt. Ward Pershing, were decorated by an American Legion post in Oakwoods cemetery, Chicago.

In London, the American Legion placed a wreath on the cenotaph in Whitehall and U. S. Ambassador Robert W. Bingham decorated the tomb of the British Unknown Soldier. American and Filipino war veterans exchanged wreaths at Manila, P. I.

PRISONERS ESCAPE
Hillsboro, Ill., May 30.—(P)—Locking Sheriff Harry Blackburn in their cell, two prisoners in the Montgomery county jail here this afternoon escaped through a coal chute.

Melvin McDowell, 25, Witt, and Charles Leatham, 20, of Kortkamp, were released to visit relatives in the jail corridor outside their cell. Instead they whirled upon Blackburn and pushed him inside and clanged the door.

Outside the jail building the two stole a motor car and fled. The two were under indictment for burglary and larceny.

Washington, May 30.—(P)—A mounting tabulation of price-cuts and wage slashes was maintained today at NRA headquarters, while President Roosevelt still felt for the public pulse before deciding what to do about NRA.

The chief executive went into the muddled situation with Donald Rieberg, Secretary Perkins and members of the National Industrial Recovery Board in a two-hour conference which discussed remedies generally but reached no conclusions.

Prevailing opinion was that some announcement might be expected from Mr. Roosevelt tomorrow, although even that was still uncertain and was based principally on the fact that he has a press conference scheduled for tomorrow morning.

Leaving the president's office Rieberg in apparent good humor parried the questions of reporters generally, but did disclose the compilation of code abandonments which his aides at NRA were tabulating.

The plan is, he said, to make this record public, possibly tomorrow as a specific example of the immediate results flowing from the Supreme Court's decision that NRA's code structure was unconstitutional and therefore void.

The White House kept close check too on letters received. Of some 2,000, said Stephen T. Early, one of the White House secretaries, only three urged final abandonment of NRA, with the remainder advocating its continuance in such form as the terms of the court opinion would permit.

At the White House it was emphasized again that General Hugh S. Johnson, first administrator of NRA, was but one of many whom the chief executive was consulting on ways and means of retaining the gains and purposes of the Blue Eagle agency.

Meanwhile, Capitol Hill reported little response to Johnson's radio appeal of last night asking that the "beneficiaries" of NRA urge their representatives in the House and Senate to insist upon a new NRA law.

At the same time, his plan for writing such a statute continued under discussion, although there was no comment from official quarters. Johnson's idea was to revise the codes on a voluntary basis with the Federal Trade Commission authorized to blink at anti-trust law infringements and enforce prohibitions against unfair competitive practices.

Prominent in Washington's speculation upon the situation also was the possibility that an amendment to the constitution might be urged for the purpose of eliminating the limitations of the fundamental law which caused NRA's downfall.

The day also saw consultations of business men in line with the recommendations of many code groups that the participants continue to observe code restrictions during the period of readjustment just ahead.

Preparations were made for drafting a voluntary code of fair competition for the petroleum and petroleum products industries, covering both producers and marketers.

Minister Will Fight Against Extradition

Red Edgar Eskridge Accused Of Killing Police Chief In Texas

By Harrel E. Lee
Associated Press Staff Writer.
De Ridder, La., May 30.—(P)—A minister who can write his name with a "six-shooter" wears a ten gallon hat and like a horse, flashes defiance through steelblue eyes tonight in his jail cell as he brands "enemies" those who accuse him of killing a Texas officer.

Rising to his full height of six feet ten inches, the Rev. Edgar Eskridge, 40, announced he would wage the most bitter battle of his turbulent career to prevent being released to Orange, Tex., authorities for the slaying here of police chief Ed J. O'Reilly.

"However, I'll go back willingly with Texas Rangers," said the dark haired pastor of the Baptist church at Orange. A requisition for his extradition has been made.

A vice crusader and bitter critic of law enforcement in Orange county, Texas, he declined to discuss accusations that he killed O'Reilly because of impersonating a Texas Ranger during a raid Sunday on a night club.

O'Reilly, who was baptized into the church by Mr. Eskridge was slain on a street corner in Orange yesterday with a shotgun fired from a motor car. Mr. Eskridge, a 220-pound man with the physique of a football player, emphasized when arrested in his car shortly afterward near De Ridder he was not fleeing but had intended surrendering voluntarily in Louisiana.

JAPANESE WARN CHINA AGAINST 'TREACHERY'

Official Version Of Demands Are Not Available

Tokyo, May 30.—(P)—A stern warning and strong demands, based on charges of Chinese treachery, anti-Japanese agitation, terrorism and alleged violations of treaties, have been delivered to the Chinese National government, it was officially admitted today.

The official version of the demands was not available and the details were kept secret here, but it was admitted that Col. Takahashi Sakai, chief of the Japanese garrison at Tientsin, issued the warning. The alleged treaty violations included mention of the Tanquiu Truce and the Boxer protocol of 1901.

There were strong indications that the Japanese war lords again would act as they did in September, 1931, when the conquest of Manchuria began and control of the entire policy toward China was taken from civilian hands.

Whether force actually will be used and how far southward it would carry the armies of the Japanese emperor remained obscure, but military spokesmen here discussed freely "the advisability of including Peiping and Tientsin within the demilitarized zone," which was established by the Tanquiu truce of May 31, 1933.

Such an extension of the demilitarization would place northern Hopei province, including the old Chinese capital and commercial city of north China, almost as completely under the domination of the Japanese army as Manchoukuo, the empire carved out of Manchuria.

Military statements indicated that the demands against China are most sweeping and imply severe limitation to China's sovereignty in northern Hopei, while the threats were said to have included the utmost use of force.

Rengo (Japanese news agency) said that "repeated efforts of the lesser Chinese to obtain a modification of the Japanese demands having failed, Ho Ying Chin (Chinese war minister) himself telephoned today to Sakai and urged the elimination of certain demands as impossible for Chinese compliance."

Sakai was said by Rengo to have refused brusquely.

1. Join some general armaments and security agreement, and
2. Return to the League of Nations.

Those with the air pact proposal, were the principal points involved in the Anglo-French security system drafted at London early in February which also contemplated relaxing the Versailles treaty's military restrictions upon Germany—something the Reich has done on her own initiative.

This government, it was stated, has no intention of loosening the Anglo-Italian-French common front evolved at Stresa and subsequently by co-operating with Germany in bringing about separate consideration of an air convention.

Sir John Simons, foreign secretary, will speak before the House of Commons tomorrow on the progress of security negotiations. He is expected to announce the next step in them.

England, France and Italy began drawing up their own air pact suggestions immediately after the conference at Stresa. France and Britain have exchanged drafts. The Italian plan has yet to reach London. None has been submitted to Germany.

Some British observers expressed the belief Germany now was ready to enter the open door to security arrangements which the British government, during recent months, has said repeatedly must be left open to her.

Roch reached the canal zone recently from South America, was arrested as a vagrant, and told his tale of Redfern. He dug out the diary today from his duffle in the baggage room of the Cristobol pier. It is written partly in English, but mostly in German.

On the inside cover of the book, there is the penciled notation: "In case something happens to me, here is the truth of Paul Redfern, missing aviator, 1927, plane NX773, Tom Roch."

On the top of the same page the following is written: "Mrs. Gertrude Paul Redfern, Toledo, Ohio, U. S. A."

Roch claims this to be the address given him by the aviator.

Asked why he never told American government officials in Trinidad or Venezuela his story, Roch replied: "I was nuts with fever all the time."

Dr. C. A. Heame, the chief quarantine officer of the Panama canal, Cristobol said that Roch "had one of the worst cases of malaria I have ever seen" when he reached the zone.

Roch insists he told his story to canal zone police several times, but says they refused to listen to him, declaring he was not to be believed.

Berkeley, Calif., May 30.—(P)—Dependent because of ill health, police said, Mrs. Eleanor May, wife of a University of California professor, closed the door of her bathroom last night, turned on the gas and lay down on the floor.

Still alive after three hours, she arose and turned on the light. A spark from a defective switch ignited the gas and there was an explosion. Mrs. May died today of burns suffered before she was rescued by her son, Kenneth and removed to a hospital.

Her husband, Samuel C. May, is professor of political science at the University.

HITLER OFFERS HIS DRAFT OF AIR LOCARNO

Copies Are Despatched To Four Nations In Europe

By Albert W. Wilson.
London, May 30.—(P)—Adolf Hitler today offered Europe his draft of an "air Locarno."—The first specific German proposal for peace bulwarks on the continent.

Copies of the draft were sent simultaneously to Britain, France, Italy and Belgium, the four governments which with Germany signed the original Locarno convention designed to guarantee western Europe's frontiers.

Tonight the British foreign office was giving the German plan, details of which were kept secret, close study, but authoritative sources said Britain's answer would demand that Germany, simultaneously with signature of the air convention:

1. Join some general armaments and security agreement, and
2. Return to the League of Nations.

Those with the air pact proposal, were the principal points involved in the Anglo-French security system drafted at London early in February which also contemplated relaxing the Versailles treaty's military restrictions upon Germany—something the Reich has done on her own initiative.

Hitch-Hiker Has Hurt His Thumb; Stranded In City

Champion Of Highways Says He Can't Get Riders With Right Hand

Chicago, May 30.—(P)—It's happened! A hitch-hiker hurt his thumb. It was no ordinary, run-of-the-road hitch-hiker either but Mr. "Limestone Slim" Howe of Newcastle, Wyo., who claims to be champion of all the west when it comes to flagging rides along highways. He told about it today in between rueful glances at his bandaged hand.

"In Cedar Rapids, Ia., I jerked my thumb without looking," he said with a sigh. "It hit a stone post. I had to have it treated and actually pay my fare to Chicago. Here I am disabled, stuck."

He gave this testimonial to his own abilities: "There was something about my left thumb that motorists couldn't resist."

Of course, that was the one he injured. Someone suggested that Howe could have his way to New York with his right thumb. But he shook his head and explained:

"It won't work. When I hold up my right thumb everybody wants to give me a ride west. I can't go east with it."

Roads to Cemeteries

One of the most needed improvements in this city is good roads to all cemeteries. Memorial Day, which always brings a full quota of visitors to the Diamond Grove Calvary, and Jacksonville cemeteries, found the roads bad and travel somewhat difficult. But practically every day of the year funeral processions move to the burying grounds, and no matter what the condition of the roads, these sad journeys have to be made. All-weather roads to the cemeteries are, therefore, a crying necessity.

With the government willing to provide funds for public improvements, this should be an opportune time to secure hard roads to both cemeteries here. The roads should be full 18-foot slabs and should extend into the grounds over permanent entrances, so that all travel in mud would be eliminated.

It is hereby suggested that city and county officials co-operate in an effort to secure this most-needed improvement and that civic bodies interested in the matter also lend their aid. There is not a citizen in the community without interest in this project, and it should receive unanimous support.

The route to Diamond Grove and Calvary cemeteries might also have another very practical value, in that it could be used as a part of the belt line planned to connect the principal hard road routes to relieve traffic thru the city. In this the state also has a direct interest. In fact no project that could be undertaken at this time is of more importance than the construction of hard roads to local cemeteries.

Rash and Impatient

President Roosevelt, who is himself a student of human nature, must have found it most interesting since the Supreme Court knocked out the NRA. He has received numerous suggestions, most of them not worth consideration. He has been told that the Supreme Court ought to be abolished.

This idea must come from those who found the court interfering with their pet schemes. They do not stop to consider whether their own plans might have been wrong, but impulsively demand the scrapping of the court that ruled against them. Nine men, believed to have the best legal brains in the nation, came to a unanimous decision after weeks of study of the points involved. They form the bulwark of the Constitution. If the nation would keep its present form of government, it must keep its Supreme Court.

Another suggestion received by the President was that Congress should be abolished. There was at one time some argument in favor of this idea and that was when Congress passed the NRA law two years ago without so much as having it read by all the members. Six hours of debate were allowed in the House, and members made one to seven-minute speeches on the most important legislation in the history of the country.

One member remarked, "I am going to vote for this bill, and some day when I get time, I'll read it." If Congress were to continue to pass laws by such methods, perhaps it ought to be abolished. But that day is past, and Congress is resuming its function as the sober law-making body of the nation.

In fact there is no arm of the government that can be dispensed with, and were such a thing to be done, democratic government would vanish. Those who mention such things show rashness and impatience.

Death Stalks Holiday

Death stalked the Memorial holiday Thursday. As a result of the day's activities and in the ordinary run of accidents, the decoration of graves was marked by an increase in the number of graves to be decorated next memorial day.

The Indianapolis race brought one death and possibly another. Three children have died and two more are near death at Pine River, Minn., as a result of eating leaded shot. Four persons were injured near this city while on a holiday trip from Chicago to Kansas City. Two were burned to death and one was critically injured when fire destroyed a home at Gilford, N. H.

Thus the roll of death is called, and the world is sadder. The natural increase of traffic due to a holiday brought more accidents on the highways, and many a holiday journey ended in disaster for families and friends.

However, these things are but the happenings in a society noted for its intense activity and remarkable mobility. People who travel and do many things are prospects for accidents always. It has been said that the person who never makes a mistake never does anything. If we would avoid accidents, we must cease much of our activity; yet we can do much to prevent tragedy by using ordinary caution as we continue to live normally in a civilized state.

Pickles and Ice Cream

The paraphraser has made a famous poem read, "Tell me not in mournful numbers life is but an empty dream for the girl who eats cucumbers and tops off with ice cream." Yet recently in a Chicago court a judge ruled that if a young lady of six wants to eat that particular combination, there is nothing wrong about it.

A wife went into court to deprive her ex-husband of custody one day a week of their six-year-old daughter, on the ground that he "takes her out and stuffs her with pickles and ice cream." But the judge had read somewhere that prejudice against such a diet for children is passe, and he so ruled.

Thus another attempt at regulation of individual tastes was shattered, and the country took another step toward freedom. Judges are becoming the most friendly and generous persons in our society these days. Santa Claus I suspect to be backed off the boards. We only hope the little girl won't eat too much and get sick.

It's Hard To Pity the Rich

The poor little rich girl used to be a subject of widespread pity, especially in plays and novels. Perhaps it was rather soothing to those of us who were never cursed by superfluous cash to reflect that you can have all the money in the world and still suffer from dissatisfaction and boredom.

Anyway, this ancient motif has popped into the news again. This time we have a wealthy young lady from Illinois who went to New York to see the sights a few months ago and who has found that a life of elegant idleness is all a snare and a delusion.

So she is advertising for a chance to undertake some feat of adventure or exploration; and she says, "I'm fed up with teas and cocktail parties—I want to do something real and exciting."

It all follows the time-honored tradition. And yet it is somehow hard to feel the pity we used to feel in such cases.

In a day when millions of Americans have been made to learn how extremely tragic life can be when money is lacking, it isn't easy to feel very sorry for a person whose one trouble is that she has too much.

A Warrior Shuns War

It is rather unusual to find Adolf Hitler appearing as an apostle of world peace. Unusual—and exceedingly gratifying.

Germany, says Hitler, has a great task of internal reform to accomplish, and must avoid war if she is to succeed at it. And then he goes on to add:

"War always was futile. Every war first destroys the best people of a nation."

Truer words were never spoken. Coming, as they do, from the one European statesman who has seemed more ready than all others to resort to war, they are doubly impressive.

If the truth they voice can sink home everywhere, the great struggle to preserve world peace should be much easier.

To the Editor of The Jacksonville Journal:

Hollywood, Calif., May 30.—We are a funny people. Business men have howled from every luncheon table the evils of the whole NRA. Then all at once the supreme court says, "The bride is off boys, from this day on every man for himself." Now the same men are rushing back to the banquet tables and unoccupied microphones and shouting, "Wages must be maintained." "Child labor is wrong." "The sweat shop must not return." You just can't please some people.

P. S.—Then the stock market went down six points.

Behind The Scenes In Washington

Generals Seek to Hush War Horrors in Munitions Quiz . . . Bullitt Weary of Post in Moscow . . . Japan's Hand Seen in Abyssinian Crisis Ickes Again Bursts Into Print.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal and Courier Washington Correspondent

Washington.—The army, which vies with the navy in encouraging glamorous martial stunts for the newsreels, balks at permitting reminders of war's horrors.

Seventy thousand World War photographs are locked in the steel filing cases of the Signal Corps. But when the Senate Munitions Committee decided it might be interesting to observe the effects of munitions—upon what some of its members sometimes grimly call the ultimate consumer—and sought the privilege of inspection, the War Department balked more violently than at any previous time in the investigation.

Secretary Dern wrote, with sufficient courtesy to annoy certain senators, that a "representative collection will be prepared" by army officers and brought to Capitol Hill by a captain.

These photos wouldn't be allowed out of his custody and couldn't be reproduced in any way—a provision by which Dern squelched the possibility that the committee might present a pictorial supplement to emphasize its recommendations.

Dern specified, "Pictures of the dead of possible identification are not made available to scrutiny."

Protest may be made against this censorship—on the ground that the photos are public property.

Congressman Thomas R. Amble of Wisconsin: "Altogether, the AAA program has resulted in retirement from production of 45,000,000 acres of land. At the same time, it is estimated that two school children out of every five in America are suffering from undernourishment."

Bullitt Eyes Paris Post
Diplomatic rumors are as unreliable as any other type, but friends of Ambassador Bullitt at Moscow report that the young negotiator of Russian-American recognition would like to be transferred to the embassy at Paris.

Bullitt doesn't get along very well with Foreign Commissioner Litvinov. That's hardly surprising. In the abortive trade-debt negotiations following recognition, Litvinov insisted that the Soviet government had been promised a large cash loan from this country.

Bullitt and Roosevelt—the only other persons present at the time of the verbal agreement as alleged by Litvinov—denied that.

Inasmuch as each side practically accused the other of bearing false witness, feeling grew strained.

The behind-the-door explanation among American diplomats is that Russia, soon after recognition, became much less worried over prospects of war with Japan and seriously concerned over the threats of Hitler in Germany.

This change called for an informal alliance with France rather than the previously planned rapprochement with the United States—and is credited with causing Litvinov's change of front.

Reports continue that Ambassador Jesse Straus at Paris will resign. Bullitt, a millionaire, could afford to take the job.

See Japan in "The Woodpile"
Many officials here also credit an inside story which says Japan is the bug under the chip in Italy's current war preparations against Ethiopia.

England, alarmed by expanding Japanese cotton operations in that African empire, is supposed to have influenced Mussolini—at least to the extent of looking benevolently upon his plans.

Japanese cotton raised in Abyssinia competes directly with Egyptian cotton and London has no relish for a Japanese intrusion into its sphere of influence around the Suez Canal. (This story is easier to hear here than to confirm.)

Ickes Cuts Loose Again

The next book by Secretary Ickes will be more sensational than his last, which fizzled. It will be called "Back to Work: The Story of PWA," and will roast former Budget Director Lew Douglas, sometimes mentioned as a possible conservative presidential candidate for 1936, charging that Douglas opposed the $3,300,000,000 public works program after Congress authorized it—on the ground that it wasn't mandatory.

By inference, Ickes will also take a few slams at Harry Hopkins and others in the administration who he feels hold to unworkable theories and to what he considers the mistaken idea of large government spending without tangible return.

Miss Harris Will Give Last Demonstration At Cooking School Friday

The curtain will descend Friday morning on Foods on Parade, the Journal and Courier Cooking School which has entertained and instructed several thousand women this week. When Miss Lucile Harris bids her audience goodbye she will bring to conclusion the most successful event of its kind ever held in this city.

I. C. Senior Prom Will Be at Elks

Upperclassmen Get Wedel and His Orchestra to Play Here June 7

Many elaborate plans are under way for the Illinois College senior prom, made according to the announcement made Wednesday by Walter Meyer, chairman of the 1935 ball. Jack Wedel and his orchestra will furnish the music for the occasion, which will be from 9 to 1 o'clock on the evening of June 7 at the Elks club ballroom.

Wedel's orchestra features the sweet type of music made popular by Wayne King. Wedel, a tenor, is the featured soloist of the group. His orchestra is already known to upper classmen on the campus, having played for the senior ball just two years ago. The band broadcasts regularly from the Hotel Pere Marquette in Peoria and is particularly popular in summer resorts in Wisconsin, playing on a tour through that state every summer.

Reserve First Floor
The entire first floor of the Elks club has been engaged for the dance. The Elks offers more room, a fine floor for dancing with a large space. A lounge off the dance hall will provide ample room for those who do not wish to dance.

The decorations will be in charge of H. M. Dasey, director of the I. C. art department. Mr. Dasey states that he has a unique plan for decorations which will be attractively carried out. The Spring motif will be used.

Miss Jacqueline De Rochi, Ball Queen, will lead the grand march. With her will be Mr. Meyer. Following the queen and chairman will be Foods on Parade will be held for the final time Friday morning beginning promptly at 9 o'clock. An audience equal to Wednesday when 1100 women packed the Illinois theater is expected to be on hand for the last day's program.

One of the most attractive menus of the entire school will be offered Friday. Miss Harris will prepare baked ham, mock duck, veal a la King, pork and apple salad and numerous other tempting dishes. She will tell how she cooks these appetizing viands, taking her audience with her through the various steps of preparation.

During the session she will discuss the best methods of roasting meats. Her advice already has gone into hundreds of Jacksonville homes, and many in other towns for the Cooking School attendance by no means has been limited to this city.

The three days of the school that are now history have been featured by huge crowds and much enthusiasm. The Journal and Courier, sponsors of the attraction, and the co-operating business firms are well satisfied with the interest shown. The event probably will become an annual institution in Jacksonville.

Early attendance at Friday's session will be necessary to obtain seats. Every effort will be made to seat the crowd, but Wednesday a number were forced to stand.

An electric range will be awarded at the closing session, along with many other valuable gifts.

Roy Colin, president of the senior class, and his guest. Next in line will be the escort and guest of the queen and chairman, followed by the members of the committee and their guests. Mr. and Mrs. Litvinov, advisers of the class of 35, will follow, and the senior class group will fall in line after them.

Local Man Believes Texas Beats Alaska For Farm Colonies

W. W. Giffen in Discussion of Back to Land Plan For Economic Ills

By W. W. GIFFEN
I have for years believed and advocated this cure for our economic ills. I think this the only solution. It is not possible for industry to absorb the surplus labor caused by machinery. It simply cannot be done through a code system or any system that man can devise. BACK TO THE LAND is the only permanent solution.

On the other hand, I think to send men, dependent women and helpless children to Alaska to farm is refined cruelty with the refinement left out. I have known men for sixty years who have lived in Alaska. And there is not the slightest excuse for such a course.

Last winter I made an extensive trip through Texas, more than two thousand miles in all. Texas is larger than France. It has six million people. France has millions. Texas has possibly the greater resources. There are literally millions of acres of land in Texas that have never known the plow just as good as other millions now farmed and supporting families in comfort.

The first county seat town in the Rio Grande Valley, entering it from the north, is Edinburg. From Edinburg to Edinburg is sixty-five miles. In this distance there is not one town and very few farmers. Yet Edinburg is a good town of some three thousand people. Only a few miles to the east is Cobb Town, the largest local cotton market in the world; or was until we cut off our export cotton trade. It is nearer to Corpus Christi than it is to Brownsville and Corpus is the better sea-port.

Between Edinburg and Corpus is Taft where Charles Taft, brother of the president, had one of the finest dairy farms in the entire South. It is closer to San Antonio, the second town in Texas than it is to Brownsville and not much further from Houston, the first city of the state. All over this vast district are good towns well supported by farmers. Between Edinburg and San Antonio is a fine dairy farm.

Overlook Good Land
What is the matter with this vast tract of uncultivated land? The answer is, there is nothing the matter with it. Men have rushed on into the Rio Grande valley just as a generation ago they rushed into Kansas and Nebraska, passing over better land in Iowa. I was over this highway six years ago. There has been practically no change in the sixty-five miles in these six years. I have talked with farmers there (there is an occasional one). They told me: "Oh I would rather have a farm here than down in the valley. A little dry. But there is plenty of water under this ground and not far under. Get a good well at from sixty to eighty feet. I pump water to irrigate my garden. Not enough to irrigate a farm. But cotton does well without irrigation and kafir corn. I don't have the expense of irrigation and don't have to bow down to the big company."

I have a cousin living at Wichita Falls, Texas. He was reared in Pennsylvania where they don't know anything about drought. They tried irrigation at Wichita Falls but it was a failure. Some men said: "Well, this country is gone."

Orchard Possibilities
I stopped to visit my cousin this winter. He told me: "I have one hundred and fifty acres in peach orchard. For the past six years I have had peaches for market six months in the year—May, June, July, August, September, October. Elbertas are killed by frost two years out of five. But some varieties will hit every year. But peaches is the surest crop."

Tell this man that his peach orchard should be allowed to go back to grass! No practical college graduate with no practical knowledge would so advise him. He will pay no attention. I could give many other examples. Actual trial is better than any man's theory. Texas may be a little too hot. But it is certain that Alaska is a great deal too cold.

Texas Beats Alaska
Texas has five normal schools and a number of fine colleges and, thanks to Jim Ferguson, fine common schools. I know men who were reared in the North who think it the best governed state in the Union. Possibly not. But it is a fine state and it beats Alaska a long mile.

Don't go where it is night time nine months out of twelve and twilight the other three. Go to Texas if you can't get along with Illinois. Even a poor farmer on a poor farm beats the relief roll or the soup line in St. Louis or Chicago, though a poor farmer and a poor farm is a bad combination. I know by experience.

Flood Control Program Would Bring Millions To Counties On Rivers

Several million dollars will be spent for flood control projects in Morgan, Cass, Sangamon, Mason and other Illinois Valley counties if Bill H. R. 7733, now pending in Congress, receives sufficient support to make it a law. More than a dozen extensive projects in drainage jobs along the Illinois and Sangamon rivers have been mapped out under the flood control program to provide safeguards against disastrous overflows.

Illinois is allotted approximately $25,000,000 in the provisions of the bill now before Congress. Fifty-eight projects in Illinois are included in the survey, which provides that work shall be done under the direction of the United States Army engineers. Other allotments in adjoining states will undoubtedly increase the total amount to be expended in Illinois' trade area.

Projects listed for this section of Illinois include:

$730,000 For Illinois River

Between Beardstown and the mouth of the Illinois river, levee setback and improvement of floodway; cost, $730,000.

Sny Island levee district, levees to protect agricultural land; cost, $71,000.

Mouth of Sangamon river, improve flood channel to protect bottom lands; cost, $122,400.

Sangamon river from mouth of Salt creek to Robey, channel straightening for flood relief; cost, $773,000.

Salt creek in vicinity of Middletown, channel straightening; cost, $48,000.

Mason and Menard drainage district on Sangamon river near Oakford, levees to protect 5,870 acres of land; cost, $78,900.

Big Sangamon Projects

Farmers Levee and Drainage district on north side of Sangamon river, levees to protect 7,950 acres of land; cost, $242,600.

Clear Lake levee at junction of Sangamon and Illinois rivers, levee to protect 2,112 acres of land; cost, $69,250.

Sangamon river and Salt creek floodway clearing at 50 bridge sites; cost, $12,600.

Panther creek west side levee, levees to protect 2,496 acres of land; cost, $143,000.

Bell and Mertz levees, Panther creek and Sangamon river, levees to protect 640 acres; cost, $31,100.

Thompson Lake drainage district, improve levees for additional protection to people and 6,000 acres of land; cost, $331,000.

Sny Island levee district, levees to protect agricultural land; cost, $71,000.

The Mississippi Valley Association

cooperated with the committee on flood control of the house of representatives in the preparation of the bill and it has been endorsed by the association's committee on the use of water resources, of which Wade O. Martin of Louisiana is chairman. The total estimated cost of the flood control program for this state is $24,783,725.

Would Furnish Work

The value of flood control and river and harbor works in providing employment is shown in the analysis prepared by the war department, which discloses that 79 per cent of all funds spent on this type of construction is paid to labor. Of the total, 49 1/2 per cent goes directly to workers employed on the projects and 29 1/2 per cent to labor employed in furnishing construction material and equipment.

Flood control projects rank especially high in this regard, the war department's figures showing that 78 1/2 per cent of the total cost of levee construction goes to labor and 80 1/2 per cent of concrete bank revetment work.

These figures are substantiated by the Monthly Progress Reports of the Federal Employment Stabilization Board, which reveal that the army engineers' operations on flood control and river and harbor projects employ more men in proportion to the money expended than any other federal department or any independent agency or bureau.

BETTER SUPPLY OF MILK IS MEMORIAL FOR JANE ADDAMS

Urbana, Ill.—Among the many memorials to the late Miss Jane Addams, famed Hull House founder and social settlement leader who died recently in Chicago, will be the pioneering work which she did almost forty years ago in conjunction with the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, for the improvement of city milk supplies.

Present high standards enjoyed by consumers in Chicago and even in other communities have their foundation in this early work, it is pointed out by Dr. P. H. Tracy, associate chief in dairy manufacturers at the college. Indirectly, this work and its subsequent developments have benefited milk consumers in many other cities, he said.

Alarmed at the quality of milk being offered to residents in the vicinity of Hull House, the late Miss Addams in 1898 enlisted the cooperation of the experiment station, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois. When the work was completed, she, with Dr. H. S. Grindley, professor emeritus of animal nutrition, reported their findings in Circular No. 13, published in December, 1898, by the experiment station on the subject, "A Study of the Milk Supply of Chicago."

"Overwhelming proof" that the milk supply of Chicago was remarkably poor was presented by the authors, they held that this was an injustice which should be remedied immediately and urged that immediate action should be taken to improve the poor milk supply then going to Chicago people.

Since then there has been steady improvement in the supply, the most recent advance being the adoption of the Kelly milk ordinance which is modeled after the U. S. Public Health Service standard milk ordinance.

Almost forty years ago when the late Miss Addams and the agricultural college were pioneering for an improvement of Chicago's milk supply, the chief concern was the matter of "watering," or adulterating milk.

The college's first work on the Chicago milk supply, in which the late Miss Addams figured, has been followed by other studies and publications, all of which have played a prominent part in establishing the high standards of the present day, Prof. Tracy said.

Play Day Held at Lafayette School

Grade School Pupils Are Divided Into Groups For Day of Games

Play Day was enjoyed by the students of Lafayette school, Wednesday afternoon. This was the school's first attempt at this type of enjoyment. The play ground was divided into seven lower grades rotated and were allowed a chance to play games of various types.

Miss Marie Donovan, physical education teacher, was in charge of Play Day. She was ably assisted by Myra White of MacMurray College and the following Lafayette teachers, who had charge of various games:

Miss Agnes Paxton and Miss Georgia Smiley, beat ball; Miss Olive Venters, singing games; Miss Esther Sallee, running games, and Miss Rena Wilson, bean bag games.

"TOOK ALL KINDS OF PILLS, THEN CEREAL BROUGHT RELIEF"

Constipation, Due to Insufficient "Bulk," Relieved by Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

A fine letter from Mrs. Snyder: "I have had trouble" with my bowels for years, taking all kinds of pills and drugs, with no relief.

"One year ago, I saw Kellogg's ALL-BRAN and bought a package. I have good movements every day. I am 73 years old. I am telling my friends what bran has done for me."—Mrs. Sallie Snyder, 913 N. Craft Ave., Hollywood, Cal.

*Constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in meals.

Research shows that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN furnishes "bulk" to exercise the intestines. ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B, as well as iron, an element of the blood.

Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient to correct common constipation. With each meal, in serious cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN resists digestion better than the "bulk" in leafy vegetables. How much better to use this food in place of patent medicines.

At all grocers in the red and green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

PROTECT your CHILD'S HEALTH with MODERN ICE REFRIGERATION

- Are you familiar with that peculiar taste that milk acquires when exposed for a little while to kitchen temperature?
- Have you noticed a similar foreign taste in butter where proper refrigeration has not protected its delicate flavor?
- It takes but a short time for bacteria to multiply in unprotected foods, to start them on the quick road to spoilage.
- Active young bodies react quickly to tainted foods. Many of the "upsets" in the otherwise healthy state of growing children can be traced to an overdose of bacteria laden foods.
- Even, low, temperatures are maintained in the modern ice refrigerator without the "ups and downs" of thermostatic control. In fact ICE is the most constant temperature known to science. The washed, moist cold it produces positively retards bacteria. Do not go through another summer without modern ice refrigeration. The low first cost as compared to all other types of refrigerators is distributed over a convenient payment plan. Call us for an appointment.

MRS. FOX HOSTESS TO SINCLAIR WOMEN AT MEETING WEDNESDAY

The Sinclair Women's club met on Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. N. B. Fox with a large attendance of members. Mrs. Von McClure presided as vice-president during the meeting, which included a business session and program.

A report of the District Federation conference at Petersburg was given by Mrs. Russell McGee. Mrs. Charles Bealmear was elected delegate to the Federation picnic to be held in Jacksonville June 6 at MacMurray College. Mrs. Harry Martin was elected alternate.

The following program arranged by Mrs. Etta Mathews was given: Song, America, paper by Mrs. Roy Fox, two poems, "Flag Goes By" and "To the Private in the Great War" read by Mrs. Loren Moody; two violin numbers by Mrs. N. B. Fox accompanied by Mrs. Roy Fox.

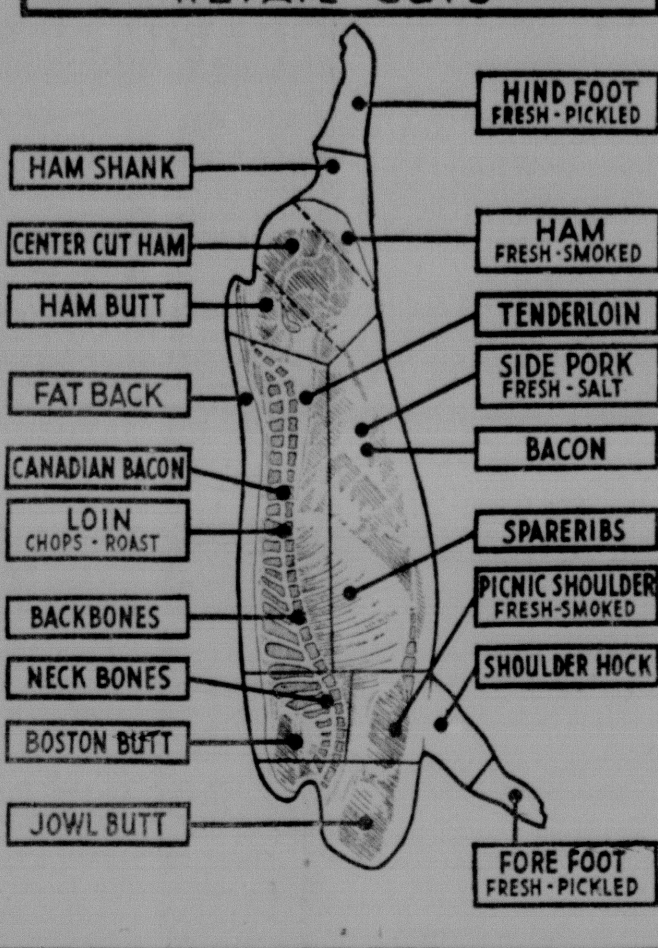

Following the interesting program a dainty luncheon course was served by the hostess.

Mrs. Lloyd Burmeister and Mrs. Vivian Obermeyer were guests at the meeting. The next club meeting will be held on June 9 at the home of Mrs. Charles Robinson. This will be the annual picnic.

Miss Bernice Wood of Washington, D. C. arrived Wednesday night for a short visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wood at Pisgah. Miss Wood was formerly on the public library staff of this city, but now holds a position with the government in Washington.

WHEN SHOPPING FOR PORK

PORK CHART RETAIL CUTS

The housewife does not see a side of pork or a whole pork carcass cut up in the retail market. This is done in the packing plant since so much of the pork carcass is sold cured. However, it helps in buying pork for different purposes to know something about how the various cuts are made. Many helpful suggestions for utilizing both fresh and cured cuts were given at Journal and Courier cooking school.

A side of pork is not cut into quarters as is the side of beef. The ham and shoulder are cut off as indicated in the chart. This leaves a long middle section.

Over the top of the loin section lies a thick layer of fat. This is trimmed off in one piece, known as fat back. The fat back is cured and sold as salt pork.

Loin is Choice Section

When the rib section and the loin section of pork are divided, they are left in one long piece. It is from here that loin and rib pork chops and loin pork roasts are cut. The center cut chops and roasts are the ones most in demand by the homemaker.

A very attractive roll is made by removing the bones from two shoulder loin ends and tying these two boneless pieces of meat into one compact roll. The same thing may be done with two ham ends of the loin. This is a very satisfactory way to treat these portions of the loin which fail to find favor with the housewife because their odd-shaped bones make them hard to carve.

Canadian Style Bacon

Canadian style bacon is made from the loin boned and cured. This is a great delicacy which may be fried like bacon or baked like ham. It is an excellent choice when the small family wants "baked ham."

Below the loin is the side pork. The spare-ribs are taken out of this section. The side pork is trimmed up into a nice neat slab and cured for breakfast bacon.

The pork shoulder is cut in a number of different ways to meet varying demands. The picnic shoulder is sold fresh as steaks or roasts. If it is cured it is sold as picnic shoulder. It may be boned and rolled and cured and is known as a cured boneless picnic. Sometimes the cured picnic shoulder is called "picnic ham" or "California ham." This, of course, is incorrect, since ham is made from the hind leg.

The Boston butt, which is shown in the chart as being just above the picnic shoulder, is sold fresh as roasts or steaks; or it is boned and cured and called a cottage roll.

The jowl butt is cured as salt pork or bacon and is known as bacon squares.

The shoulder hock may be sold either fresh or cured. Pig's feet are considered a great delicacy, and they are sold fresh or pickled.

Advantage of Buying a Whole Ham

The remaining pork cut, as shown in the chart, is the ham. The ham is sold fresh as roasts or steaks, but it is more familiar to the housewife in the cured state. The center slices of ham are the usual choice. Since there are only a few center slices, the price corresponds to the demand. Buying a whole ham is real economy because it will keep as long as it lasts and it may be used at will.

The ham may be cut into slices for broiling or frying. The whole ham may be cut into slices for broiling or frying. The whole ham may be baked or cooked in water. The ham butt may be baked very satisfactorily and is a real bargain. Ham shanks are fine cooked with vegetables and they also are bargains.

Business Here Well Advanced on Route To Recovery, Claim

Government Census Figures Show Decline, 1929-33, But Gain Seen Now

In the depression years from 1929 to 1933 Jacksonville lost 12 industrial establishments, 122 wage earners and about $300,000 in payroll. These figures are revealed in the final report of the census of manufactures for 1933, issued by the Bureau of Census, U. S. Department of Commerce.

It should be remembered, however, that this city has not lost a major industry during the depression, and that most of its factories have been operating a major portion of the time. The present situation is very good, with industries operating full time and good prospects for recovery of all that was lost during the four principal depression years.

In 1929 the city had 38 establishments. By 1931 the number had dropped to 31 and by 1933 to 26. Wages declined from $697,787 paid to 749 workers in 1929, and to $596,409 in 1933, paid to workers who had increased in number to 773.

During the four years the cost of materials, fuel and electric energy used by local industries steadily declined. In 1929 the amount paid out for these essentials was $4,234,437; in 1931 it was $2,222,814, and in 1933 it was $1,761,084.

The value of the manufactured products of industries here also showed a decline. In 1929 it was $6,597,888; in 1931 it was $6,636,694, and in 1933 it was $2,919,100.

It should be borne in mind that these statistics are more than a year behind. There are no figures available for 1934 or for the first months of 1935. It is believed that when the census of these intervening years is announced, they will show a gain. It is encouraging to note that as early as 1933, the number of workers had already begun to increase.

More Than Inch Of Rain Falls In Hour Here Thursday

Deluge Hits Community and Sends May Record to an All-time High

A downpour of rain that sent the May record to an all-time high of more than 12 inches struck this community early Thursday morning. Between 6 and 7 o'clock 1.03 inches of rain fell, according to the official rain gauge at the Norbury weather station. Total rainfall for Thursday was 1.69 inches. Pavements ran curb full of water for a time and cars were stalled in the flood.

However, the storm did not send Mauvala's creek out of banks. There was some water on Route 36 east of the city at the point where Victory drive joins it. The water poured down the hill and over the road, but was not deep enough to prevent passage of cars.

The city lakes sent their surplus over the spillways in torrents, and the creek ran bank full on its course to the Illinois river. However, the rain was so torrential that the water ran off rapidly, and the ground was left beaten hard in places.

The exact total rainfall for May is 12.26 inches, three inches above any previous record kept by weather observers in this county. Thursday's rain will retard farm work, which has hardly time to get under way during the brief periods of sunshine the weatherman deigns to provide.

Art Exhibit Opens at MacMurray With Private View, Tea

Fine Work of Students to be Shown at College Friday, Saturday

The Annual Exhibition of Art Students at MacMurray College was opened yesterday afternoon with a private view and delightful Tea which was attended by many friends of the college and Jacksonville art lovers.

Miss Knopf, head of the department, and Miss Tatro, instructor in art, with the two seniors in the art course, Clara Chapin and Margaret Cook, were the hostesses. Louise Feldkamp and Jean Coyne, junior art majors, presided at the beautifully appointed tea table.

The exhibition will be open to the public on Friday and Saturday from ten to twelve mornings, and one to five-thirty in the afternoon. A very cordial invitation is extended to the people of Jacksonville to avail themselves of this very interesting event which is a part of the commencement program.

MacMurray School of Fine Arts exhibit at commencement time is an occasion of outstanding interest on the calendar of events. Miss Knopf is recognized as an artist of note, not only in the state but by national societies and the work of this department is of unusual interest.

Gallery Vivid With Color

The exhibition reaches its usual high standard and the gallery is charming with the vivid color and interesting designs of a variety of materials. The show includes examples of work done in the Design Courses, also water colors, tempera, oils, charcoal drawings, some commercial art, and various kinds of crafts, original wood block and linoleum prints, and some of the work from the College Annual.

A definite emphasis on the basic fundamentals of art structure is quite evident throughout the whole exhibit in the ordered and logical fashion in which problems of varying difficulties have been solved. The scope of the exhibit is wide. There are a number of interesting screens of work done in the design classes, showing how constructive design is successfully applied to specific problems and illustrating the rules of harmony, rhythm and balance used as a basis of art structure.

The work in water colors, tempera and oils cover subjects of still life, portraiture and landscape and clearly show the underlying principles of design upon which they have been constructed, as well as the psychological approach which today is the basis of sound art training. Visual perception is emphasized as an important part of training and originality and a definite personal viewpoint fostered under the enthusiastic and very able direction of Professor Knopf. This work in color is approached from the angle of interpretation rather than representation, and the creative impulse of every student is stimulated and encouraged. The charcoal drawings are soundly done and show not only a technical performance of superior quality, but an intelligent analysis and interpretation of the effect of light on form.

Students Display Talent

The work of Clara Chapin has the distinction of a personal viewpoint and shows a talent well displayed in the various media in which she has worked. Her life-class sketches and her oils deserve special interest. Margaret Cook also shows some able oils and water colors. Some excellent water colors by Louise Feldkamp, Ruth Bonn, Jeann Coyne, Sally Fisher and Mary Ellen Main are particularly noteworthy; while Mary Jane Dobyns, Beverly Martin, Barbara Mason, Ann Caplinger, June Moore, Merle Walter and Virginia Robinson show tempera paintings of very charming, delightful color and design. On the Sketch Class screen one finds very interestingly portrayed sketches in pencil and lithographic crayon that are outstanding in grasp of line and character delineation.

Some hand-blocked linens give a delightful sense of color and design, and two batik, one an Egyptian motif, the other showing Assyrian influence, are distinctive and arresting. The linoleum block prints show very personal interpretation of Jacksonville subject matter, and some very interesting portrait drawings from life are admirably done and show fine structure and interpretation—those of Ardath Canavan, Ruth Bonn and Mary Ellen Main are especially interesting.

The exhibition is of unusual distinction; the variety of material and subject matter, the high standards, and the intelligent and modern approach should make it extremely interesting to the Jacksonville public.

Latin Classes Win Wide Recognition

Miss Spelbring's Students at Athens Engage in Study of Classics

The Classical Journal for June, 1935, in the Current Events section, contains an account of the Bimillennium Horation celebration which was carried out by Latin students in the high schools of Athens, Greenville and Petersburg, under the direction of Miss Mary A. Spelbring of the Athens Community High School. Miss Spelbring is a graduate of MacMurray College in the class of 1930.

The celebration was highly successful, and brought the students in the three schools, which are rivals in many scholastic fields, together for a program which was non-competitive in nature.

Latin pupils in the three schools were divided into three groups, the Russatae, Albatae, and Venatae. Topics relating to the life of Horace were discussed by the various groups and translations of the Horatian ode assigned to Illinois were read. A group of games, connected in some way with Latin, was followed by stunts relating to Roman life or mythology.

The Classical Journal also tells of the play put on by the Latin department of the Moline High School; this is a biennial presentation, and Edward Lucas White's "The Unwilling Vestal," dramatized by Miss Grace Warner, of the High School faculty, was the presentation. Miss Sophronia Kent, another graduate of MacMurray, and a former member of the Jacksonville High School faculty, is one of the Latin teachers in the Moline school.

Hitch-hiker Warns Against Own Crowd; Points Out Risk

Former Newspaper Man Warns Against Giving a Lift

(Editor's Note—This article was prepared by a newspaper man who passed almost two score years in city rooms of large dailies but is unemployed at present. He has hitch-hiked more than 35,000 miles in 41 states during the last two years and bases some advice to motorists upon his experiences and observations.)

By W. E. BURBANK

Rid the highways of hitch-hikers! That is the slogan of automobile associations but it is meeting with little success because there are more men and women trying to thumb their way across this great state of Illinois today than ever before. As a rule they comprise a harmless lot but there are some characters among them to be wary of and my advice to Jacksonville motorists is to use discretion in regard to picking up strangers if inclined to follow that practice at all or pass 'em all by.

Located as it is on one of the main arteries of traffic north and south, also east and west, a host of these itinerant pass through this city every week. It is noticeable this year that they comprise a higher type of men and women as a rule than in previous years. They are a class long unemployed but not yet entirely exhausted financially, and are making a struggle to get work along their route—like myself. Young men garbed in overalls have deserted the paved roads for freight trains or are being cared for at transient camps.

He Wouldn't Go Hungry

While waiting the other day for a ride towards Jacksonville I talked with a smartly attired chap who seemed to be having a hard time to get a lift. He ought to, as I learned, in a few minutes. He displayed a revolver and boasted that he wasn't going hungry although he hoped never to resort to violence. In another instance I encountered a young man who admitted he had completed a two year "stretch" in Leavenworth Federal penitentiary recently and couldn't see much on the outside, adding that he didn't care much if he was committed for another term.

These two cases illustrate my contention that drivers should play shy of strangers. Prospective riders should be quizzed regarding their destination and in any way to satisfy one that they are harmless and, particularly, if they carry dangerous weapons or not.

Safety In Middle Age

As a rule men approaching or past middle age, if they are neat in appearance, will not cause trouble for any motorist who befriends them and generally they have some definite object in view travelling from one community to another. It's the young bloods to watch out for, sad to relate.

In my extensive travels by the thumb-wagging method Illinois has proven one of the most difficult states in which to get a ride. It took me one entire day to cover the distance between Alton and Carrollton on U.S.-67 three weeks ago and then I turned back to St. Louis when I had the opportunity to ride clear through. Starting again I went east through Collinsville, Highland, Hillsboro, Litchfield and into Decatur but it required two days to get rides enough to complete that trip.

Why, two years ago when I passed through Jacksonville, it was easy to make two hundred or more miles in a day. Motorists just have become afraid to stop for strangers and in view of the numerous outrages, such as assaults, robberies and even murders which have been committed allegedly by hitch-hikers, it isn't any wonder. Just a few months ago a particular friend of mine was killed by a 16 year old lad he picked up near his home in Hollister, Texas.

Hiker Also Takes Chance

But the dangers are not all on one side. Any person who goes out onto a highway and climbs into any car that may stop for him is running a grave risk, also. Perhaps the car may have been stolen, or the driver may be an escaped felon, or a criminal fleeing from the scene of some recent pillage.

Out on the open road I'm always anxious and glad to get a lift but had I known that the young man who stopped for me one day last August was at the time Public Enemy No. 1 and being sought the country over I certainly would have said "No, thank you."

At the time I was travelling from Omaha to Kansas City and stood at a cross road south of Clarinda, Iowa, waiting for a ride. Presently a high-powered car wheeled onto the pavement from the west and stopped directly in front of me. Two young and attractive women occupied the front seat, one of them driving. I sat behind them with a mild-spoken and innocent appearing chap who said they'd carry me a piece down the line.

Rides With Desperado

After about 15 miles the car stopped and let me out, the man saying they were going east. Shortly after that car disappeared and before I had caught another ride another powerful car loaded with officers came tearing down the road and stopped long enough to ask me which direction a car with two girls and a man took. I pointed to the road and they whirled away.

Upon reaching Bradyville, the Iowa-Missouri state line, I learned that a bank in the small town of Elkton, west of the main traffic way, had been robbed of $500 by a young man who fled in a car driven by two girls. Imagine my further consternation when I saw a picture of Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd in a Kansas City newspaper and immediately recognized him as the one who had carried me that 15 miles in Iowa while being chased by the law. The bandit was in that section at the time and there was no mistake in my identification. What a chance I took, riding with him. If he had been overtaken and a gun battle followed while I was in the car, it would have been just too bad. Since then I have learned that "Pretty Boy" never passed up a hitch-hiker if there was room in his car. He figured in my case that the posse of officers would be on the lookout for a machine carrying a man and two women and if there was a fourth person they might pass it by, with the idea that it was a different car altogether.

Value of Caution

One day three men stopped for me outside of Terrell, Texas, and I was anxious to reach Dallas. As I caught up with the car one of the occupants stepped out and demanded gruffly "What yer got in that case, a machine gun?" I assured him to the contrary and then he felt me over to see that I had no weapons in my pocket. After we got started and they learned my identity the men had a good laugh and remarked that they'd have carried me to Dallas if I'd been armed to the teeth as they were three deputy sheriffs. However, that's the sort of precaution I urge Jacksonville motorists to take before letting any stranger step into their cars.

Use judgment, or pass 'em all by!

Kelly Petillo Wins 500 Mile Auto Classic At Indianapolis

Wentlandt's Fine Left Handed Flinging and Davis' Wildness Cost Local Club Big Battle

Illinois College's hopes for a baseball title soared after a muddy diamond here yesterday in the last game of the season on the wings of a fine piece of hurling by Elvar Wentlandt, North Central College hurler, and wild tossing on the part of Russell Davis, Blueboys ace who couldn't get the steady stride he has shown at other times this year. The final score was 9 to 3.

It was a sad ending to the careers of four Blueboy athletes who have partaken of conference honors in the past but they took their licks like good sports. College mates cleared the diamond of an inch of water by digging holes into which the water flowed, and from where it was dipped out and carried away by a bucket brigade. Automobiles pounded down the surface of the field and a roller put the final touches on the diamond still shining from the moisture packed into the dirt.

There was a grand flourish for Jimmy Winn, captain of the team and one of the outstanding college athletes, proving again that he is a "money-player." For Tony Pacotti it was just another ball game, but one in which he provided a fitting finale by getting one of the five hits off the North Central left hander. Roy Colin, another of the departing quartette, played heads up ball all through the game.

But for Davis the game was a heart breaking finish to a college career. Trying his best because he wanted a championship for the Blueboys, Davis pitched his heart away for six and a third inning before he was removed in favor of Sulo Mattson. Until the seventh Davis had allowed but three hits, but he gave four runs in one inning, and seven all together before he was waved off the hill.

Win Third Time Out. North Central twice defeated on excursions to Jacksonville, accepted the victory calmly, without much show of enthusiasm, but winning it with a smooth ball team working behind excellent pitching. They got to Davis for five hits, and got three off Mattson in the ninth as a parting salvo. North Central lost its chance to get a basketball championship when it invaded Illinois College early this spring, and lost a football game to the Blueboys last fall.

Wentlandt broke another tradition that has existed on the Hilltop for several years. He is the first left hander to finish a game against the Blueboys in at least four years and possibly more. He had a fast ball, plenty of twisters, and a slow ball that worked, and he had better control than most southpaws.

Through the first four innings Wentlandt allowed only one extra man to face him, receiving sensational support from Gordy Smith, who pulled down four men for outs, one of which seemed to be headed for a single. His first trouble came in the fifth when he walked Roy Colin with a wild pitch, Colin going to second. Then Sam Mangieri slapped the ball against the left field canvas for a single, scoring Colin with the first Illinois hit. Mangieri got another blow in the seventh, but died on base.

Winn pined on Finish. Illinois staged a rally in the eighth when Winn gave a typical exhibition. With one down and two on, Winn shot a double into right center, scoring Taylor, who had singled. Tony Pacotti lashed out his final blow in the eighth, scoring Kline, but Winn was held on third while Colin and Mangieri rolled out.

Davis was in trouble almost from the start. Graver scratched a single to open the game, Yukins sacrificed and Young was hit with a pitched ball. However, Davis picked Young off first, and Dieber rolled out to end the game.

But with two out in second, Davis got tangled up and hit Dillon with a pitched ball, walked Mكار, and Wentlandt poled the ball against the gymnasium for a double, driving in one run.

Dillon's homer in the fourth after Davis had walked two men, put the game on ice for the Cardinals. Roy Colin barely missed the ball, ripping the canvas in right field in an effort to lean over the wall and get the ball. Davis finally left the mound in the seventh with one down, after he walked Young, and gave hits to Dieber and Spiegler, two runs scoring. Mattson finished the inning neatly, and got through the eighth without being touched.

Attack Mattson, Too. The Cardinals unleashed their bats on Mattson in the ninth. Yukins opening with a single and advancing when Young walked. Yukins was forced out at third when Dieber got on. The two base runners moved up a notch when Spiegler dumped a single just back of second. Then Mattson threw the ball over Clark's head and one run scored. Dillon singled driving in another run, and a third run scored when Roy Colin's throw to the plate hopped crookedly.

White Sox Split With Indians

Chicago, May 30.—(P)—Chicago's White Sox loosed a home run attack today to give John Whitehead, their sensational young righthander, his eighth straight major league victory, 8 to 4 over Cleveland in the first game of their Memorial Day doubleheader, but succumbed to Willis Hudlin's two hit pitching, 4 to 0, in the second battle before 42,000 fans.

Whitehead's triumph delighted the biggest crowd at Comiskey park since Babe Ruth and the Yankees attracted 54,825 July 6, 1933, but the defeat forced the White Sox to yield first place in the American League to the Yankees who defeated Washington twice. The home forces, much to the surprise of the rest of the league, had headed the parade since May 11. The home runs, by Manager Jimmy Dykes, Zeke Bonura and Rip Radcliff, made Whitehead's task comically simple, although he yielded 10 hits, to eight by his pitching foe, Oral Hildebrand.

Hudlin's shutout, his fourth victory of the season and his second over Chicago, marked the second time the Sox have been held scoreless this year.

Giants Defeat Dodgers Twice

By Eddie Brietz Associated Press Sports Writer New York, May 30.—(P)—Those rollicking Dodgers from Brooklyn paid dearly today for coming across the bridge last September and knocking the Giants out of the National league pennant race.

Phil Terry's pace-setters, just back from a triumphant invasion of the west during which they won ten out of ten starts, got their revenge by turning back the Flatbushers in both ends of a double-header before 63,943 fans, the largest turn out in National league history. The scores were 8-3 and 6-0. Three home runs into the crowded stands figured prominently in the scoring.

Prior to today the record National league crowd was at the Polo grounds on September 12 when the sensational Dean brothers pitched the Cardinals to victory in a double bill over the Terrymen.

The Giants further humiliated the Dodgers today by scuttling them into fourth place in the league standings, the furthest point south the Brooklyn New Yorkers shelled Van-Mungo, pride and joy of the Dodger hurling corps to walk away with the batting crown, while a sparkling two-hit pitching performance by Fred Fitzsimmons, until this year a Dodger nemesis, was the main factor in the second victory.

Head Play Wins Historic Race

By C. Robert Kay Associated Press Sports Writer New York, May 30.—(P)—Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane's Cavalade lost his rider at the start of the historic suburban handicap at Belmont Park today, and it was Mrs. Silas E. Mason's Head Play which led home a superb band of handicap stars to finish the mile and a quarter in the exceptionally fast time of two minutes and two seconds flat.

Head Play, piloted by Jockey Charley Kurlinger, broke well after being fractions at the barrier, overtook C. H. Knebelkamp's King Saxon which led for a mile and won easily by a length and a half, holding Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Discovery, which ran second, safe during the stretch run. Mrs. Deering Howe's Only One was third. A crowd of 25,000 turned out for the fine Memorial Day card.

The burning pace of the race was indicated by the fractional times, which showed King Saxon running the mile in 1:36 1-5, and the mile and a quarter in 2:02 1-5. Head Play was a head in front was recorded for only two-fifths of a second slower than the world record for that distance. The time of 2:02 for the mile and a quarter equaled the fastest in America this year. Azucar was clocked in 2:02 1-5 in winning the Santa Anita handicap, but the electric eye revised the figure to 2:02 flat.

Discovery dropped far back during today's running, and made up much ground, but was not equal to the task of catching the winner. It is doubtful if Cavalade, the 7 to 5 choice and last year's champion, would have been able to defeat Head Play in view of the five-year-old former Preakness winner's form today. Cavalade was assigned 127 pounds and Discovery 123 pounds compared with Head Play's 114.

Identify the other half of the Vanderbilt entry, was fourth, King Saxon fifth. Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Singing Wood sixth and riderless Cavalade brought up the rear. Discovery, the jockey, who was unsuited, was J. Gilbert. J. Bejsak piloted Discovery.

Head Play's odds were 7 to 1, 5 to 2 to place and 6 to 5 to show. The Vanderbilt entry paid even money to place and two to five to show, while only one paid six to five to show, year to more than $50,000, topped by his victory. Head Play takes rank as among the best of the handicap division. The $12,175 he won today brought his total earnings for the year to $100,000 Santa Anita handicap on the Pacific coast.

SEEKS REINSTATEMENT Duquoin, Ill., May 30.—(P)—Coach Stephen A. Kole of Edwardsville High and former mentor of the Duquoin Township High, today asked for reinstatement of his school in the Madison-St. Clair High school conference. Edwardsville was barred a year ago after charges were filed against the school alleging that students of athletic ability had been attracted there from other southern Illinois high schools. The application for reinstatement will not be acted upon until fall.

Tigers Divide With Brownies

Detroit, May 30.—(P)—The revamped St. Louis Browns sprung a 16 hit attack on four Detroit pitchers this afternoon to score a 10 to 7 victory in the first game of a holiday twin bill, but they had nothing left for the second game and Tommy Bridges held them to three hits while the Tigers ran off with a 2 to 0 win.

Hemsey and Burns, gathering in seven of the 16 blows in the opener, led the Brownie attack on the Tiger hurler.

Bridges and Russell Van Atta staged a pitching duel in the second, but Bridges had the edge and better control.

Yanks Grab 2 From Senators

Washington, May 30.—(P)—The New York Yankees assumed the mantle of leadership in the American League for the first time this season today when they trounced the Senators in both games of their holiday double bill, 4 to 0 and 9 to 3 while Cleveland White Sox split with Cleveland.

The Yanks piled up 30 hits in the two games while a pair of youngsters, Vito Tamulis and Johnny Broaca, gave Washington only 16. Tamulis pitched six-hit ball in the opener for his second successive shutout and his third of the season. Broaca was less effective as he eased up under a big lead.

Los Angeles Italian Breaks Record by Driving His Car At Speed of 106.240 M.P.H.

By Edward J. Neil Associated Press Sports Writer Indianapolis, May 30.—(P)—Riding Kelly Petillo, leader footed Los Angeles Italian, leading a cream colored streak of thunder and lightning, today won the fastest 500-mile automobile race ever staged on the Indianapolis speedway, as death again put its gruesome stamp on the 25-year old spectacle.

Coming out of the treacherous northwest turn of the 2 1/2-mile brick paved oval only 32 1/2 miles after the green flag sent 33 mightily lit thunder wagons roaring away in brilliant sunshine before a record shattering crowd of 155,000, 24-year old Clay Weatherly, of Cincinnati, lost control of a black racer that already had cost the life of Johnny Hannon, of Norristown, Pa., in the practice runs.

The somber bullet, traveling at least 110 miles an hour, smashed against the retaining wall, careened down the track, then rocketed through a wooden fence, leaping end over onto the grass infield in full view of the thousands that packed the northern end of the mile-long grandstands lining the stretch.

Weatherly, who only a few days ago begged Leon Dury, owner of the car, for a chance to drive after the car had been rebuilt following Hannon's death, was tossed clear with his mechanic, another youngster, 24-year old Brad Gehring, 2b. Weatherly, a burn of Los Angeles, Weatherly, a big good-looking kid, making his first start here after years of dirt track driving, died there on the grass from a fractured skull and other terrible injuries. Bradburn suffered a fracture of at least two vertebrae in the middle of his spine, and is in a critical condition.

The death of Weatherly brought the toll for the 1935 tournament of the doled to four, for W. H. (Stubby) Stubbfield, and his mechanic, Leo Whittaker, both of Los Angeles, died the same day Hannon did, eight days ago, in a qualifying run smashing into a retaining wall.

The toll was one less than the record—five died preparing for or during the 1933 race—and in this respect alone did previous records stand a day that for barbaric touches, and outpouring of carnival minded throngs, provides a one-day spectacle nothing else in American sports knows. Eleven drivers and mechanics have been killed in the last three races alone, 31 in all since the annual event was started in 1911.

Petillo, a driving madman, down to his last penny before his luck finally turned today, hammered over the 500 miles of rough brick, 200 laps of a track built to accommodate the 90-mile and hour speeds of 25 years ago, in four hours, 42 minutes, 22 1/2 seconds, at a record-shattering average speed of 106.240 miles an hour. But for the fact that a sprinkle of rain in the late stages slowed what was left of the field to 75 miles an hour for 33 laps, he would have slaughtered even further the 104,863 miles average "Wild Bill" Cummings, of Indianapolis, set last year.

Cummings, driving a steady, heavy race, finished third, five miles back of Petillo, and three miles behind Wilbur Shaw, who stayed with the pace all the way, and came from fourth to within two miles of Petillo in the last 300 miles. Shaw's time was 4:43.02.73 for an average of 105.990, which also bettered Cummings' former record, Cummings was clocked in 4:46.22.48, an average of 104.758.

All of the first ten, the money winners, had averages better than 100 miles an hour for the first time in the history of the race. They were Floyd Roberts of Los Angeles, fourth; Ralph Heppner of Los Angeles, fifth; William (Shorty) Canton of Detroit, sixth; Chet Gardner of Long Beach, Cal., seventh; Deacon Litz of DuBois, Pa., eighth; George (Doc) MacKenzie of Edgington, Pa., ninth, and Chet Miller of Detroit, tenth.

Two other drivers, Louis Meyer of Huntington Park, Cal., and Fred Frame of Los Angeles, both former winners, completed the 500 miles in 11th and 12th positions but their times were not taken.

BEAT BRADLEY Monmouth, Ill., May 30.—(P)—Monmouth scored a run in the ninth inning today on a squeeze play to defeat Bradley 8 to 7, in an Illinois intercollegiate conference baseball game.

Andrew tripled in the ninth and scored as McDaniel bunted. Previously he had doubled twice. Handley led Bradley with a triple, double and a single.

Score by innings: Bradley 001 010 311-7 11 3 Monmouth 200 121 011-8 11 1 Jordan and Lintz; Mantle and Reed.

Record Street Earth Shocks
Pasadena, Calif., May 30.—(P)—A strong earthquake about 8,000 miles distant and "in all probability in Asia or eastern India," was recorded at the Carnegie Institution's seismological laboratory beginning at 1:52-P. M. Pacific standard time, today.

"Because of the great distance it is difficult to determine the epicenter of the disturbance," said Charles F. Richter, of the laboratory.

"The tremors were recorded on our instruments for more than an hour, but this is not an indication of the length of the quake. It is much like dropping a stone in a pool of water. The ripples keep coming shoreward long after the stone has sunk."

He said indications were the quake was strong enough to do much damage if it struck a well populated area.

Chicago, May 30.—(P)—The ghost of John Hamilton (either dead or alive) walked again in Chicago tonight.

The Dillinger gangsters, variously reported at large or dead and buried, caused a flurry in police circles momentarily and squads of heavily armed detectives rushed to the Northwestern railroad station on a "tip" that Hamilton was aboard a certain train.

The squad got to the station too late to meet the train, but the conductor convinced the officers that no one resembling Hamilton had been aboard.

Among the Moors, if a wife does not become the mother of a boy, she may be divorced with consent of the tribe and can marry again. This continues until she does give birth to a male child.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

KATHARINE STYKHEIMERST beautiful, 20, becomes acquainted with MICHAEL HEATHEROE, riding teacher, and acknowledges an unending attraction toward him. She is worried over the progress of an affair between ZOE PARKER, her best friend, and GIBBS LARKIN, of whom Zoe's parents disapprove.

Katharine and DR. JOHN KAYE, friend of the Stykheimer family, take Zoe to a night club where she sees Gibbs with a notorious woman. Zoe threatens to kill herself.

That same night Michael is inveigled into taking SALLY MOON, local coquette, to the same place. Sally, arriving home late, informs her father that she and Michael are engaged.

Zoe drinks poison. Doctor Kaye sets to work to save her life.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XIX

DR. KAYE spoke slowly, as one who is deadly weary. "We pulled through," he said. "She's going to get well."

Katharine crumpled against the window frame. Her creamy silk evening frock was wrinkled. Her eyes had great hollows under them. "Oh, John, thank God! You did it—we owe it all to you."

He shrugged his shoulders. "It was the least I could do."

"You mean because you took us to the club and she saw Gibbs there? Why, that was fate—"

"Not exactly," said John Kaye, rather dryly. "You see I happened to know he was one of the habitués."

"I hear gossip around town."

"It's taught me something," Katharine said, on a long, shuddering breath of exhaustion. "It's taught me never to interfere with human destiny. That, after all, is God's business . . ."

"If only we could all learn that lesson so early," said the man wryly. "Come along now. Time for you to get some sleep. Zoe is resting quietly."

"Does her mother know?"

"I sent the nurse to tell her five minutes ago."

"Then I must have been asleep," marveled Katharine. "And I thought I'd never sleep again till I was sure. What weak creatures we humans are, John! You must have thought so when you came out of that room a moment ago and saw me doing."

"I thought . . ." he paused and smiled, that peculiarly winning smile of his. "Never mind what I thought."

Katharine went home again, tip-toeing through the quiet house, through the dew-soaked garden. The morning seemed new-minted for her special pleasure. It was a fresh gift. Never before had she realized how divinely sweet a morning could be.

Zoe's convalescence was slow. Not one but John Kaye and Katharine knew what really had happened that terrible night. Some columnist from the city printed an item to the effect that "Gibbs Larkin took it on the chin from a certain prominent medico at the Blue Sky Club." Katharine, reading it, trembled. But there were no further repercussions from the incident. Gibbs evidently had not been seriously hurt and, wherever he was, he had the sense to keep out of Zoe's path.

Later Katharine read his name in the sailing lists. Bound for Plymouth and Havre.

THE day came when Zoe was allowed to walk in the garden. She seemed thinner, more thoughtful than before. Her close brush with death had sobered her.

changed her from the laughing, rather frivolous girl she had been into a quieter woman. Katharine was conscious of being drawn to her as to a younger sister.

For the moment thoughts of Michael Heatheroe were pushed into the background of Katharine's mind. She saw him almost daily. Sometimes he rode at her side; sometimes not. But their relation ship was now on a firmer basis. Katharine no longer felt it necessary to be stiff and offhand with him. Every day she saw about him some quality that she liked and admired more.

"Who says men and women cannot be friends?" she demanded of Dr. Kaye one rainy Sunday. Bertine and her father were at the country club for tea.

"I don't know. Who does?" John Kaye returned lazily. Ellen had kindled a fire in the library grate, for the afternoon was cool as well as damp—a curious day for August—and Katharine sat on a low hassock, poking idly at the embers with one of the fire tongs.

"Oh, I don't know. Everybody!" Katharine offered vaguely, smiling to herself.

"Generalizations are always stupid," the doctor said idly.

"I love this," Katharine went on with animation, including the fire and the tea tray in the wave of her hand. "It's pleasant to be shut in like this, with rain pouding against the windows and beating at the door." She smiled a secret smile, thinking of the day she and Michael Heatheroe had been sheltered in the warded cabin. Michael had been angry at her that day. Why? Some day, perhaps, she would know. He had never spoken to her in that way since.

"Pleasant, indeed. You never can get this feeling in a city apartment," mused Dr. Kaye. "You have to have the noise of tree branches bending in the wind and the sweep of water pounding on rocks and maybe the lighthouse bell tolling occasionally to give you a taste of real drama. In the storm."

Katharine, who had been putting his cup down, "You've been happier of late, haven't you? Or do I imagine it? Somehow you and Bertine seem to be hitting it off better than you did."

"Oh, yes. Bertine is all right," Katharine said politely. It wouldn't do to tell John that the reason she was able to bear her stepmother's irritating ways, her trick of whining and "fussing" at everything was because she had found a new outlet for her energies and affections. The Mersey house was open to her now when ever Bertine made home unbearable. Violet Mersey was her confidante . . . and Katharine loved the children, too, as she hadn't dared to love anyone for years. But if Bertine knew how often she sought out the little white house in the hills behind Innislock, she would be sure to interfere.

How grand it would be, Katharine thought, if Michael Heatheroe were to come walking in that door this very instant. She would say, "Ten, Michael!"

She would say, "I'm sorry, but do you take sugar and cream? I don't seem to remember . . ."

But she could never ask Michael Heatheroe to her home. Her stepmother would never allow it. Bertine, for all her smiles and apparent amiability, ruled the Styk-heurst menage with a rod of iron. Her portly husband did exactly as she wished; in fact, he often thought said Katharine rather contemptuously to herself, exactly what his wife told him to think.

Michael Heatheroe did not "belong."

"Who is he?" Bertine would say, with a lift of the eyebrow.

Well, some day Katharine would have a place of her own. She could ask her own friends there, as often as she liked. No one would dare to criticize then; or, if they did, she would not listen.

"Wool-gathering, Princess Kitty?" She smiled at the lean, ascetic-looking man across the hearth.

"I guess so. You used to call me 'Princess' when you first came here, John. 'Princess Kitty.' You were a very grand young man and I was in pig tails."

"A funny child you were, too," said John Kaye. "Just like a prickly pear. I tried so hard to make you smile."

"Was I that bad?" cried the girl.

"Well, you were afraid of people. Shy—no, it wasn't exactly shyness. Distrust, I'm afraid. Poor little girl!"

HER throat tightened, her voice thickened as she said, "Don't, Doctor John. You'll have me bursting into tears."

"Well, you've changed a lot, anyhow," said the man. "You're not afraid of anyone any more. That's the stuff, Katharine. Look life in the face and tell 'em all to go to hell."

"Good advice," said Katharine, smiling.

Lights flashed up in the overhead fixture and Bertine Stykheurst bustled in.

"What are you two doing, mooning here in the dark? You ought to get into your things and take a brisk walk," cried Bertine. "Katharine doesn't take enough exercise. That's why she droops around so, half-alive."

Angry words sprang to the girl's lips and were suppressed. Dr. Kaye looked at her warningly.

"I played three sets of tennis in the broiling sun yesterday," Katharine said, keeping her tone good-humored with an effort. "And I rode horseback in the morning. Doesn't that count?"

Bertine gave her own superior little laugh.

"Oh, I guess we know why all the young ladies in town have taken to riding of late. I guess we could tell a thing or two about that."

Katharine clenched her hands. With an effort she controlled her voice. "Really?"

Bertine turned to Dr. Kaye as if for understanding and sympathy. "You wouldn't believe how silly the girls are nowadays about the first decent-looking male creature in breeches. Why, I heard today that Sally Moon is going to marry the fellow."

"Marry whom?" the doctor asked.

"Why, that young man who runs the riding place," cried Bertine, in triumph. "That chap who calls himself Heatheroe."

John Kaye, glancing at Katharine, was shocked by the drawn look on her face.

"Why, there's something here," he said to himself, in surprise. "This means something to her."

MEMORIAL DAY APPROPRIATELY OBSERVED HERE

Patriotic Rites Held At Graves In City; Hold Parade

With a parade of patriotic organizations and military rites at three cemeteries where many soldiers and sailors are buried, Jacksonville impressively honored its dead on Memorial Day. Bands from the Jacksonville State hospital and Illinois School for the Deaf marched in the parade and furnished music.

Veterans of the World War and Spanish-American War co-operated in holding the annual observance. This is probably the first Memorial Day in history that a veteran of the Civil War has not participated in the parade. None was in the line of march Thursday morning.

A new spirit of patriotism was carried into the observance by the Sons of the American Legion, an organization of younger boys that is flourishing here. A group of nearly 40 youngsters marched and carried flags.

State motorcycle patrolmen headed the marchers, followed by the American Legion color guard and the hospital band. Members of the Woman's Relief Corps and U. S. Daughters of 1812 rode in cars.

Eight Spanish-American War veterans were in line with their colors. The School for the Deaf band was followed by World War ex-service men. Sons of the Legion and members of the Legion Auxiliary completed the column, with Boy Scouts marching between the various units.

The parade started at West State and Church streets, moving through the business district at 11 o'clock and disbanded at the Legion Home.

Decoration of graves in Jacksonville, Calvary and Diamond Grove cemeteries was halted temporarily by rain early in the day, but ceremonies were held in each burial area despite the weather. Brief rites were conducted at one representative grave in each cemetery.

Ellis Henderson, of the Spanish War veterans served as chaplain, with J. H. Dial, also a veteran of '98, as commander. Dale Chapman, son of a World War veteran, was the bugler. A firing squad fired a volley at each grave decorated.

The firing squad at the cemeteries consisted of J. C. Walsh, Roy Hapke, Fred Hapke and Jack Larson. Color bearers were Amos Wright and Gilbert Baptist. The color guard consisted of John Larson and H. M. Dodd.

CLASS BANQUET HELD THURSDAY BY H. S. SENIORS

Program Enjoyed By Students At Informal Meet Last Night

Last night in the parlors of the Central Christian church, the seniors of the Jacksonville high school enjoyed their final informal get-together before the graduation exercises this evening. The occasion was the class banquet and nearly every member of the class was present to hear the will and prophecy, the other numbers of the program, and to spend a little time with comrades, students and teachers, before passing out of public school life.

Bob Fay served as toastmaster. Miss Edna Osborne, dean of the class, was the first speaker of the evening. Miss Osborne has been at the head of the present seniors during their entire high school career, and she expressed appreciation for their cooperation.

Louise Blimling, who has the highest scholastic standing of the class, was next on the program and presented a very entertaining humorous reading. Following her were Myrtle Denny and Eleanor Large, who sang the class' own blues singers, who sang a group of popular numbers. The second reading was given by Louise McCurley and was well received by her classmates.

An accordion solo was then given by Peggy Sullivan, who served as president of the class during its junior year.

Edward Johnston was then introduced as the student who is generally conceded to have made more assembly announcements than any other two pupils.

The last two features of the program were the will and prophecy, the former telling what each individual leaves to the school and the latter describing the future occupations of the class members. The will was cleverly presented by Edward Smith and Bill Ricks, while Peggy McCarthy rendered the unusual and unique prophecy.

As a last token of their appreciation for the wonderful help the class has received from their advisor, Miss Osborne, Bob Fay presented her with a gift from the class as a whole.

After giving a bouquet to the toastmaster, a committee of Willard Brookhouse, Mable Smith, Ruth Kendall, and Bill Schildman was appointed to arrange for a reunion banquet next year.
